

VALENTINE

By Christian Anieke

I see raindrops wrapped in gold

I see snow-white earth-bound flakes

I hear the sweet melodies of ageless birds

I hear the soothing sounds of running liquids

I hear the throbs of a heart counting little stones of love

I taste the liquids of my mouth as you flash across my face

And I know you're indeed my val!